Dear Colleagues

This special issue pediatric and neonatal medicine is one of our dreams and comes true. This is one of our greatest hopes come to light. I think that this is the first special issue in pediatric and neonatal medicine in American journal of medicine and medical sciences. All published material was refereed from at least two experts in pediatrics. We would like to extend our sincere thanks to all who sent their articles for publication and to the scientific publishing group. We are looking forward for your help. Without that, nothing can be achieved.
